We have established with Sydney University the Alex Lopez PhD Scholarship in Pancreatic Cancer. The scholarship named in loving memory of Alex, plays a pivotal role in attracting talented PhD students from around the world to improve the survival rates of pancreatic cancer patients. Over the last 15 years, University of Sydney clinicians based in their teaching hospital on the Royal North Shore campus, have become leaders in treating pancreatic cancer. Patients treated by their team survive almost twice as long after diagnosis compared to the average Australian pancreatic cancer patient treated elsewhere. At the University of Sydney, as part of the Kolling Institute at the Royal North Shore Hospital, provides the research foundations that the team refine into best practice.

Arbeitskreis der Pankreatektomierten (AdP)

www.adp-bonn.de | Lutz Otto, adp-magdeburg@live.de

Concerned with diverse, difficult situations after surgery on the pancreas, patients had the idea to found a working group in Heidelberg. That was in 1976. Precisely at the same time, people also came together to raise awareness and to solve life-threatening problems - the idea of "self-help" was born. Since 1976, doctors and nutritionists have worked with the AdP. The organization supports the rehabilitation of patients, suffering from pancreatic disease (operation or illness of the pancreas itself). But particularly, the AdP supports patients with pancreatic cancer. With over 1,300 active members and more than 60 groups in Germany, the AdP raises significant awareness about pancreatic cancer. Every year, more than 16,500 cases of pancreatic cancer are diagnosed in Germany. The organization estimates more than 65,000 incidences of chronic pancreatic inflammation in the country as well. The AdP is a non-profit organization that has developed a well-functioning system of aid for the disease since 1979, with the support of doctors from different disciplines: nutritionists, psychologists and social experts. The organization is a member of the "Paritaetische Wohlfahrtsverband," the "Rehabilitation Association for Digestive and Metabolic Diseases," the German "Pancreas Club," the German "Diabetes Federation" and the "Gastro League Club." It is funded by the "German Cancer Aid" foundation. A scientific advisory board of experts supports the AdP board and its groups throughout Germany with important medical information about health care and policy.

My Everest Association was founded in Rivolta D'Adda (CR) in October 2015 by Monica Rozzoni, Luca and Chiara Sala, wife and sons of Luigi Sala, who was the founder of "My Everest Project." He died from pancreatic cancer at the age of 46. "My Everest Project" was an initiative aimed at people suffering from pancreatic cancer: The name comes from the passion that Luigi had for the mountains. His first goal had been to raise 8,848 euros to support pancreatic cancer research at the San Raffaele Hospital in Milan, virtually climbing 1 meter/euro of the highest mountain in the world - Mount Everest. Luigi climbed other mountains when he was sick to demonstrate that when you have cancer you can do a lot of incredible things, even climb mountains never climbed before. He demonstrated that the best way to face the illness was to be positive and trust in medicine.

Luigi knew that this cancer is still not well-known to scientific research because its symptoms are silent and it is possible to diagnose it only in advanced stages. For this reason, he decided to raise funds for clinical trials. Today, the project is focused on providing information on current clinical trials and on prevention via its website and, of course, on raising funds for research.

Bella Lisa Pancreatic Cancer Foundation

www.bellalisapcf.org | bellalisapancan@gmail.com | +19178316588

Our main goal is to provide wings of support for patients diagnosed with pancreatic cancer by offering assistance to families/caregivers in dealing with this devastating disease. Often patients and their families/caregivers are left on their own to deal with the treatment protocols. We hope to provide a local network to assist with nutritional information, emotional support, and to provide someone to talk to that has been through this process from the beginning. We intend to do this through local fundraising events.

Destroy Pancreatic Cancer was founded by John Couvillon of Atlanta, Georgia. While battling pancreatic cancer, he made a promise to his medical team that when he was well, he would help them to destroy pancreatic cancer. While John lost his battle in May 2017, his work vigorously continues.

Our mission is to fund clinical trials that lead to improved treatment options. We'll also establish both hope and a plan for all pancreatic cancer patients. The hope comes from the clinical trials performed under a true collaborative model. The plan supports patients in quickly developing a strategy to win the battle.

Initiative CodePurple is an awareness and advocacy campaign dedicated to driving urgency and action in the fight against pancreatic cancer. With the highest mortality rate of all major cancers, pancreatic cancer is an emergency. It must be a national priority, and we demand a new approach to federal pancreatic cancer research. We propose a pancreatic cancer pilot program, with federal research assets, that leverages the tools and resources of the private sector to fast-track the development of an early detection test and curative treatments. Medical advances have saved millions of lives and new technologies have contributed to a dramatic improvement in survival rates for breast, colon and prostate cancers. In all this time, pancreatic cancer patients have been left behind. CodePurple aims to grow the influence, resources and public support for the broader pancreatic cancer community.
